

Please don't lift the ban on cellphone use in aircraft while in flight. Once the plane is on the ground, fine, go ahead and use the phone. But in the air, the plane is a much too small, confined place to have a private conversation. Have you ever been in an elevator (for example) and some obnoxious, drunk fool (lots of those on planes!) is loudly offering their unwanted and often extremely offensive opinions of everything? Well, imagine that multiplied by 40 or 50 and that's what air travel would become. PLEASE keep the ban in place, and protect the privacy and sanity of the greater traveling public!

Thanks for your consideration.
